

23 September 2014 - In conjunction with the Climate Summit 2014 that starts today, the United Nations and METRO International will launch the 10th edition of METRO Photo Challenge, the world's largest photography competition.

Cities are a primary source of Greenhouse Gases emissions, a major player in climate change. With METRO Photo Challenge, open to everyone, everywhere, contestants can submit their visual interpretation of any of the three city categories; My City's Magic, Urban Escape, or the theme chosen with the United Nations Climate Change team: "My Green City." The grand prize? A photo-expedition to the city that never sleeps: New York, New York.

The launch will take place at the Climate Summit. The Summit, brainchild of UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon, is a prelude to the 2015 Climate Conference in Paris. The goal is not to produce legislation, but to generate a common agreement and understanding on what some activists such as Nobel Prize winner Archbishop Desmond Tutu have labeled the destruction of the environment as the human rights challenge of our time.
