

4-5 October 2014 - The solution for the global education crisis is not as simple as building schools – qualified teachers are essential to ensure an effective learning process for all.

Teachers are central to shaping the ideas and attitudes of future generations to deal with new global challenges and opportunities. As we are approaching 2015 and the new development agenda, it is crucial that teachers remain a priority.

As we celebrate World Teachers' Day on 5 October, UNESCO and its partners invite all to help spread the message regarding the importance of investing in teachers. Quality education brings hope and a promise of a better standard of living.

The Global Education Crisis: 49 million children out of school