

14 October 2014 – The Central African Republic (CAR) has been devastated by months of violence between Christians and Muslims. More than 5,000 people have been killed and thousands fled the country . Nearly 67,000 refugees fled to the neighbouring Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) since 2012.

However, glimps of hope emerge. Zongo, located in DRC near the Oubangui River flowing between the two countries, is home to two courageous people determined to cultivate the seeds of forgiveness and peace: Imam Moussa Bawa and Sister Maria Concetta.
